Most Sustainable School: GOLD Al Maseera School, Al Showaib

The Al Maseera School is one of the best success stories for the 2012-13 academic sessions. This school is a great example of how all it takes is just commitment, dedication and sincere efforts really to reach closer towards sustainability.

Despite being so far away and being first timers, they have displayed great results and made a real difference in the school. The evaluation committee for the SSI Awards gave special mention for this school and recommended them to share their experience with other schools as well.

They worked very hard on their green school audit module and won two awards for the air managers and best green audit category. This is a testament of the accuracy and effectiveness of their audit.

They also developed a new teaching technique for integrating environmental concepts into the school curriculum and they won an award for the best environmental educators' category. This is indeed special as they were unable to attend any training owing to their geographical location.

All their students were taken out for field trips and this was also connected back to their class lessons. Their Eco Club projects, both the internal and external were successful and reached out to many people in their neighbourhood community. Most of all the secret of their success lies within the school management who deserve most of the credit as it was they who motivated, encouraged and supported their teachers and students to participate and perform in the Sustainable Schools Initiative.
